

DATA PACKET SCHEDULER

Abstract of the Invention

Data switching systems for use in ATM and other packet and cell switching networks can more smoothly switch data if incoming data packets to be switched are re-ordered to avoid overwhelming an output port with too many consecutive packets to a particular destination. An apparatus and method for simply re-ordering data samples in a non-consecutive manner is computationally efficient and effective.

192012v2